Product Review – Dots on Tots

19 November, 2013 Proud Dad Reply

Now that it is nippy out and I had to get down the family's winter gear from the attic we could finally see if BB was up for my favorite game show, Will The Baby Keep His Hat On? I'm not sure if it counts as a win or not because the game show's rules are a bit fuzzy, but BB does indeed NOT keep his hat on. Much like his socks there is nothing he does faster than take his hat off. Which is why we needed a something a little stronger. Dots on Tots, made from organic cotton, are double thick baby hats that feature Velcro on the flaps. Of course like most good baby products these hats are made by a mom in the good ole US of A. The flaps completely cover the youngster's ears to try and prevent ear infections. Dots also makes a Noise Reduction hat with ear protection inserts in case you're like me and you keep taking the baby to Metallica concerts. I'm still waiting for someone to make a hat that doesn't just cover the ears, but also stops the little guy's nose from running as it does all winter.
